HSBC ESTABLISHES FINANCIAL SYSTEM VULNERABILITIES COMMITTEE

HSBC Holdings plc today announces the establishment of a new committee of the Board, the Financial System Vulnerabilities Committee, and separately the appointment of a new non-executive Director of the Company who will be a member of the new committee. HSBC is also appointing five independent advisers to the committee to support its work.

Douglas Flint, Group Chairman of HSBC, explained the rationale for the new committee noting: “We have established this committee to provide governance, oversight and policy advice and to support the work which Stuart Gulliver, the Group Chief Executive, is leading to simplify business activities and enhance risk management and control through enforcing and adopting the highest behavioural and compliance standards across HSBC.”

Stuart Gulliver highlighted the importance of this new committee: “The new committee, which will benefit from the experience of the expert advisers, will provide invaluable guidance and advice as we strengthen our capabilities and enforce the highest standards, in particular in relation to combating financial crime. The calibre, status and experience of the individuals reinforce once more how seriously we are taking this.”

The committee will provide governance, oversight and policy guidance over HSBC’s framework of controls and procedures designed to identify areas where HSBC and the financial system more broadly may become exposed to financial crime or system abuse. Financial crime and system abuse are defined broadly as encompassing all activities through which bad actors may gain preventable access to the financial system or good actors may abuse their participation in the system by undertaking transactions or activities that are reputationally damaging to HSBC, even if not actually illegal.

The objective of the committee is to use its knowledge and experience to help place HSBC at the forefront of industry leadership in this area. The committee will oversee and report to the Board on management's implementation of the actions necessary to build assurance in these areas.

The scope of the committee's remit will encompass governance, oversight and policy guidance, inter alia, with respect to the following:

- Anti money-laundering systems and controls;
- The application of Group Standards regarding tax transparency, anti-avoidance and compliance;
- Prevention of terrorist financing;
- Prevention of association with illegal drugs activities;
- Application and enforcement of financial sanctions;
- Intelligence in relation to all of the above regarding emerging threats; and
- Effective relationships with governments and law enforcement agencies in relation to the above.

In addition, the Financial System Vulnerabilities Committee will assist the Board in meeting its continuing obligations to regulatory and law enforcement agencies in the areas noted above and will seek to provide the Board with a forward-looking perspective on financial crime risk.

The committee will comprise at least two non-executive directors and be supported by five subject matter experts as Advisors, as set out below.

Non-Executive Board Members

Rona Fairhead, CBE (Chairman), Chairman of the Group Risk Committee.

Sir Simon Robertson, Deputy Chairman and Senior Independent Director.
