ANNEX 1
EXTRACTS OF THE AMENDED ELEMENTS TO THE SUMMARY OF THE INTEREST RATE-LINKED AND INFLATION-LINKED NOTES BASE PROSPECTUS

B.4b	Known trends affecting the Issuer and the industries in which it operates:¹	Following the general election on 12 December 2019, the UK's political landscape has changed substantially. With a large majority in Parliament, the government presided over Brexit – the UK's withdrawal from the European Union ('EU') on 31 January 2020. After a transition period lasting until the end of 2020, the UK is set to move to a new trading relationship with the EU. The UK economy continues to face uncertainties. First, it remains to be seen what form the UK's future relationship with the EU, and other trading partners, will take. Second, the government has yet to outline its fiscal plans in detail– they will be set out at the Budget on 11 March 2020. Third, the economic data are sending mixed – and not always encouraging– signals. On the data, the economy saw zero growth in the final quarter of 2019, following a 0.5% increase in the third quarter. Annual retail sales growth in November dropped below 1% for the first time in more than a year and a half, and annual consumer price inflation sunk to 1.3% in December, well below the Bank of England's 2% target. Importantly though, these data refer to activity taking place around the time of the election, when political uncertainty was elevated. Business surveys point to a post-election boost to economic growth, but it is unclear how large and sustained that will be. Given these continued uncertainties, HSBC Research maintains a cautious outlook. Its forecast is for below-average GDP growth of 1.1% in 2020, then an acceleration to 1.4% in 2021, driven, in part, by looser fiscal policy. But this subdued outlook is unlikely to deliver much inflationary pressure. Given that, HSBC Research forecasts Bank Rate to be reduced from 0.75% to 0.50% in May this year, then to remain on hold until at least the end of 2021. Eurozone real economic growth saw a slight slowdown through the course of 2019. Having started the year at 1.4%, the annual pace of economic growth slowed to 1.0% in the fourth quarter. While the slowdown has been modest, it masks big divergences across sectors and countries. Household spending growth has picked up slightly and investment has been surprisingly resilient. But there has been significant weakness in trade and industry. This weakness has been felt most acutely in Germany, where the manufacturing sector has been in recession for more than a year. That said, there are early signs that the eurozone has left the worst of the manufacturing weakness behind it – having slumped earlier in the year, manufacturing indicators have broadly stabilised. Alongside the slowdown in economic growth, the annual 'core' rate of eurozone consumer price inflation, which strips out volatile energy and food prices, remains low, at 1.1% in the January 'flash' estimate. But of course, this is still materially below the European Central Bank's ('ECB') target of 'below, but close to, 2%'. Given the stabilisation in leading indicators, HSBC Research forecasts quarterly economic growth to pick up very gradually over the next two years. However, full-year eurozone economic growth in 2020 is expected to be soft, at 0.7%, while growth in 2021 is expected to be only a little firmer, at 1.0%. Fiscal policy is likely to be somewhat supportive, but a large scale stimulus package seems unlikely. Against this subdued growth backdrop, HSBC Research expects eurozone inflation to remain below the ECB's target through this year and next. Monetary policy is likely to remain highly accommodative– the ECB is expected to keep rates on hold through
