

The Retirement Countdown: People around the world now saving seven years longer for retirement

The Future of Retirement Generations and journeys

Responses from a global survey of 18,207 people in 17 countries and territories

1 On average, working age people now expect to save for retirement for seven years longer than current retirees did

Additional years working age people expect to save for retirement

2 Looking back, many people don't think they are saving enough for retirement

38%

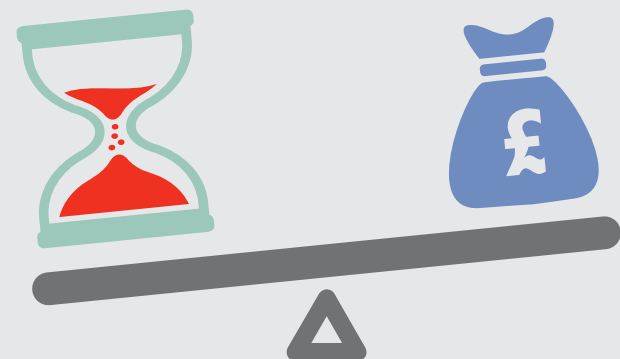

wish they had starting saving at an earlier age

28%

wish they had saved more by putting aside a larger share of income

3 Nearly a quarter of people have still not started saving for retirement

24% Average

4 Working age people expect to use a range of different methods to help fund their retirement

